Fast Growing. New York, June 26.—E. V. Smalley, in the New York Evening Post, under a Chicago date, says:

A real estate man who goes about this city a good deal tells me that there are today in Chicago 30,000 vacant flats and dwelling houses, and that on West Madison street alone, a thoroughfare that runs out to the city limits and is the chief business artery of the West Side, 300 empty stores can be counted. When you go a little way out of the business center by cable or electric cars you notice tall buildings and small buildings on either hand that are speckled with signs of "For Rent." In fact, this big, growing city illness was caused by a blood clot on the was about as badly overbuilt during the period of excessive speculation as any ous results if he should be kept free of the new and boastful towns of Kansas from excitement. or of the Pacific coast, and it will probably take four or five years of steady defor housing it and furnishing it with business offices and stores. Yet in the long run it may well be doubted whether it is a disadvantage for a city to have dwellings and stores to offer to newcomers at moderate rentals. Such opportunities ating for themselves and lead to the establishment of permanent enterprises. Faoffities for the distribution of products are now so cheap and abundant that no place has any very great advantage over other places for production, and low ents become an important factor in the nomics of manufacturing and trading. For general comfort and satisfaction in living a wise man would prefer Milwaukee or Detroit to Chicago, and a poor wage earner is certainly better off in a small city than in a large one. Chicago still falls short in many re specis of the standard of a really great city. It lacks historic background; for lacks a class of people of lessure, inter ested in art and literature; it is badly built and vilely paved save in a few dis tricts; its population is singularly heterogeneous—a hodge-podge from all nations of the earth; it is dirty and clamorous; yet when it sets out to do things in a great city way it does them remarkably well. Witness its superb system of parks; its Art Institute; its Field Columbian Museum; its Newberry Library, and its Public Library; its new university, and its remarkable lake front improvement which is turning many acres of Lake Michigan into a park and a site for public edifices. Witness, too, the recent growth of civic spirit which has more than once checked the common evil in American ckies of corrupt municipal government. Chicago is still very materialistic in its spirit, and its heroes are the men who have made for themselves great wealth, but it has quite outgrown its old habit of bragging about its growth and attainments in business, and no longer talks or feet of lumber !t handles or the number of cattle and hogs it slaughters. Those things are now taken as matters of course. It cannot yet support a literary magazine, and its book publishers appear to have a hard time, but it has a little coterie of artists of merit and of writers whose books are read everywhere, and its morning newspapers are in some respects ahead of those of New York.

Pack that SHAL SKIN GAR-MENT away in that hot, dry place again this year. Haven't you noticed that the skin is becoming dry and stiff and the fur don't lay as smooth and pretty as it used to. If you don't take care of it the skin will soon be broken and ruined. THE PROCESS of GLAZING the skin is softened, the fur brought out, smoothed and cleansed and it is made to look like new. It is absolutely necessary that fur garments be taken through & process of glazing at least every two years in order to keep the fur soft and smooth and to preserve the skin. If you will send your garment to us while the season is dull, we will glaze it for $3.00 a garment, you to pre-pay express.
